Join us for a week of journalism education! All middle school students are invited to a workshop led by the staff of the Arlingtonian, Upper Arlington High School's award-winning newsmagazine. During this fun-filled week, participants will learn interviewing skills, editing techniques, and how to write their own well-researched stories. Food and drinks will be provided.

Students are not required to attend every day of the workshop. Parents can register by scanning the QR code above. Each individual day attended will cost $20, or students can attend the entire week at a discounted rate of $75. Cash or checks (made out to Arlingtonian) will be collected during the workshop.
