Throughout the Fall of 2021, the focus was on the detailed design process for the Upper Arlington Community Center. That focus continues into the New Year and, as promised, built into this process are many opportunities for residents to get involved.

Fall 2021 Engagement Activity Summary
A series of community engagement activities kicked off in October, with the following highlights:

Open House 1
At the first Open House, held October 20, information was shared about the detailed design process and project schedule, with a recap of the primary building program and uses that had previously been identified by the Community Center Feasibility Task Force. Participants were then able to provide input on how they envisioned using the aquatics, gymnasiums and community spaces, and were able to play with blocking/stacking options to help identify preferred placement of specific program spaces.

Open House 2
At the November 10 Open House, details were shared about the City’s prospective partners for the Community Center and their aligned mission around health, wellness and recreation. The design team also discussed the multi-generational and multi-purpose nature of the proposed spaces within the facility that support the Community Center’s holistic vision.

Two planning schemes were shared showing how the different program uses could be placed within the building. Some general preferences emerged from these options, including:

- A preference for placing parking underground to maximize ground floor programming space (if the budget allows)

- A preference for placing the Senior Lounge on the second floor with program rooms

- A preference for locating multi-purpose spaces on the top floor

Focus Groups and Work Groups
From late November into December, a series of focus group and work group discussions were hosted in person and virtually in order to facilitate robust conversations on specific programming areas, such as senior programming, youth & teen opportunities, aquatics, inclusion & accessibility, and sustainability.

In total, eight focus groups and four work group discussions occurred, with more than 85 participants, providing invaluable insight on needs and expectations for fulfilling the goal of creating a holistic, multi-generational facility that will truly serve as the community’s central gathering space.
Questions of the Week Word Clouds

When the UACC opens, what’s the first thing you look forward to doing in the new building?

What are your creative ideas for how we may repurpose the Macy’s blue bricks salvaged from the Kingsdale site?

Additional focus groups are anticipated as the detailed design process progresses.

UACC Website & Emails

uacommunitycenter.com

The design team has been encouraging residents to become and stay engaged in the process by regularly checking the UA Community Center website, and registering for email updates. In November alone, the website was viewed by more than 2,500 unique users and by early December, 485 people had registered for regular email updates.

Questions of the Week

Beginning in late November, the team began posing a weekly question about the UA Community Center - from ideas for making use of the blue bricks salvaged from the former Macy’s/Lazarus building to seeking creative ideas for making sure the UA Community Center feels welcoming to all. Above are two word clouds depicting the most popular responses to two of the questions posed.

UA Community Center Capital Campaign Update

In the September/October issue of UA Insight, we shared word of the Upper Arlington Community Foundation’s launch of a Community Center Capital Campaign and the exciting news of a $2 million lead gift from Loann Crane in honor of her husband, Bob Crane. Since that time, campaign members have been reaching out to individuals and families who have expressed an interest in financially supporting this initiative.

“Securing private funds in partnership with the City is crucial to creating a vibrant gathering place for all of our residents by providing an exciting mix of activities, educational events, and social and recreational opportunities,” said campaign co-chair Margie Pizzuti. “The $2 million lead gift from Loann Crane represented the first significant private commitment to lead by example. It has inspired others in the community to follow with their financial support of this long-awaited Community Center.”

“Based upon the success of the campaign to date, we’re confident that we will raise at least our original goal and secure additional dollars to assure that the Center is built in a way that reflects what our citizens envision with this creation of this exceptional gathering place,” added campaign co-chair Mike Fitzpatrick. “We’re encouraged by the opportunity for additional financial support, that can be raised through a broad based, grassroots effort to ensure that all our community’s citizens feel a sense of ownership in the Center. As the design plans for the Community Center are finalized in the coming months, those additional dollars raised will be crucial to enhancing and maximizing the use of space within the facility.”

An update on the Foundation’s Community Center Capital Campaign will be shared with the community at the 2022 State of the City Address on February 17 (see page 4 for additional details). To learn more, please call 614-451-0700.
With the dawning of each New Year comes a report out to the community from City leaders, at the annual State of the City Address. For 2022, we are mixing things up with a move to February, a change of location and a focus on the Upper Arlington Community Center.

The evening will begin with a 6 pm reception with refreshments, allowing for networking and an opportunity to meet with members of Council and the Administration. Then, beginning at 7 pm, City Manager Steve Schoeny and members of Council will highlight accomplishments from the past year and provide a look ahead to what’s on the horizon, while also honoring our 2021 Community Award recipients. Members of the Community Center Capital Campaign Committee will also be on hand to provide an update on their efforts to raise private funds to help offset the costs for constructing the Upper Arlington Community Center while assuring that this new facility meets the community’s vision.

Thereafter the Community Center design team will unveil the preferred planning strategy and schematic design concept for the Upper Arlington Community Center, affording the community a first look at what the building might look like.

This is an exciting time for Upper Arlington as we look forward to realizing a once in a lifetime opportunity for our community.

We certainly hope you can join us for our annual catch up and networking event. Watch for more details in the coming weeks via our City Insight e-News and on our website.

The 2022 construction season will be another busy one, as our Engineering Division oversees efforts to reduce a backlog of necessary work as part of year eight of the City’s, first 10-year Capital Improvement Program. Read on for a summary of this year’s projects.

Fishinger Road Phase I
Long awaited improvements to Fishinger Road begin in 2022, enhancing the connectivity and aesthetics of this major thoroughfare. Phase I runs from Mountview Road to Tremont Road, with full street reconstruction, new curb and gutter, improved LED streetlights, new sidewalks and a shared-use path. The City has secured grant funding of up to $4.2 million to support this $6.9 million project. Phase II – scheduled for 2023 – will complete the project, running from Mountview to Riverside Drive. Concurrent with these improvements, a new waterline will be installed along this entire section of Fishinger.

McCoy Road Phase II
The final phase of work on McCoy Road – resurfacing and spot curb and gutter repairs, between Riverside Drive and Woodbridge Road – will be undertaken in 2022. This follows 2021 waterline replacement and resurfacing work between Woodbridge Road and Kenny Road.

Street Reconstruction Program
Street reconstruction projects are comprised of full pavement replacement, new curb and gutter and new driveway approaches. For 2022, the following streets are scheduled for this extensive maintenance and repair work, with an estimated cost of $1.9 million:

The area includes sewers between Surrey Hill Place, Mountview Road, Fishinger Road, and Lytham Road.
- A new, five-foot-wide sidewalk will be installed on the west side of North Star Road between Zollinger Road and Fishinger Road.
- The Wakefield Forest neighborhood north of the High School will undergo some sidewalk improvements, including a new section on the north side of Trentwood Road between Northwest Boulevard and North Star Road, and a new section on the west side of Mt Holyoke Road, between Trentwood Road and Zollinger Road.
- The fifth of five phases of sidewalk maintenance projects across the City will be undertaken, completing the first full maintenance cycle for the community’s entire sidewalk network.

Parks Capital Improvements

Northam Park Phase 2
Following on from drainage enhancements undertaken at the park during the winter of 2021-22, focus will transition to the replacement of the park service building, in support of athletic, tennis and general park uses. This will include a plaza in front of the building, replacement of the central plaza within the tennis complex, and replacement of three clay tennis courts.

The existing hockey/basketball court will be replaced by a larger court.

Turkey Run Erosion Control at Reed Road Park
Erosion control measures will be implemented to stabilize the stream, both at Reed Road Park and downstream from the park.
A little over one year into its formation, and the Community Relations Committee (CRC) is starting to build some momentum in its efforts to support UA as a welcoming community for all.

The CRC held its first meeting on October 22, 2020. For the balance of 2020, the Committee worked to further define its role and mission. In early 2021, the CRC divided its work into three areas of concentration:

- City Operations: Working with the Administration to improve diversity, equity and inclusion within the City's operations. This includes police community relations.
- Improving From Within: Highlighting the diversity of our community today and supporting the diverse individuals and communities that already exist within Upper Arlington.
- Improving From the Outside: Finding new and improved ways to encourage more people to consider Upper Arlington as a place to live, operate a business, work or visit.

Over the course of 2021, the CRC advised the City on making some notable improvements to internal operations and police community outreach.

- The City revised several key aspects of its hiring process, requiring that all positions be posted openly, even if strong internal candidates exist, with applications and resumes stripped of any identifying information during the initial screening process.
- Recruitment materials have been enhanced to emphasize the value of a diverse workforce, with a series of recruitment videos developed in support of the City’s hiring goals.
- Members of the Police Division have become CRC meeting regulars, speaking with the Committee on multiple occasions to discuss key elements of our policing policies and procedures, including hiring and evaluation processes, use of force policies, body worn cameras, criteria for traffic stops, the division’s complaint policy, and race-based statistical analysis. These discussions led directly to a community training that is focused on providing information on these topics for busy residents who care about these issues.

In 2021, the CRC made good progress in its efforts to highlight and support Upper Arlington’s existing diverse communities.

- uacomunityrelations.com - A Community Relations website has been launched to serve as a depository for the work of the Committee as well as providing useful resources for the community.
- The Committee’s feedback led to the City working with the UA Public Library to develop an annual community calendar of cultural and religious observances, which is expected to launch early in 2022.
- The City has taken a more expansive approach to recognizing cultural celebrations and observances in Upper Arlington and more generally with guidance from the Committee.

Of note, on the calendar page of this issue of UA Insight you will see details of some Black History Month plans that are under development thanks to a collaboration of several community groups.

- Where appropriate, the Committee has worked with City Council and other community organizations to support communities within Upper Arlington when there have been concerns about safety based on events inside or outside of UA.

To effectively make Upper Arlington more accessible to visitors and to expand its appeal to prospective new residents, the Committee determined that more information is needed relative to existing perceptions about Upper Arlington. The Committee is helping the City Manager’s Office with a contract to survey our residents – especially those who are newer to the community – about their experiences choosing UA and becoming part of the community.

Goals for 2022

Beginning in August 2021, the City Manager’s Office and the CRC began developing a grant program for community organizations to work on moving the mission of the CRC forward. In early 2022, the City will release a request for proposals to implement programs in UA that are focused on:

1. Increasing UA residents’ knowledge, understanding, and appreciation of diversity within UA and throughout Central Ohio.
2. Increasing the number, type and quality of positive interactions by non-residents with the UA community.
3. Increasing the sense of belonging and inclusion of all UA citizens, with special focus on non-majority residents and those without pre-existing connections to UA.
The expectation is that the City will provide grants of up to $15,000 in support of the development of new programs that fulfill one or more of the above listed goals.

Members of the CRC believe that this grant program represents an opportunity for a huge leap forward in achieving the charge that Council set out for the Committee, promising to engage community members and organizations. The Committee and the City Administration both view the 2022 grant cycle as a pilot year, and we are anxious to learn from our successes and failures through the process.

Additionally, the findings of the City’s research with newer residents about their experience becoming part of the UA community will likely lead to an additional set of priorities and potential programs. The Committee also anticipates wanting to test some of the initial research findings with populations outside our community.

I wish to thank members of the CRC for their work to date. For any new entity, it takes time and effort to find its feet. This process was made more challenging as a result of COVID-19, with the CRC’s initial meetings held virtually. As we enter the New Year, I am optimistic and excited about the coming year for this entity and for our community.

For the past two years, Upper Arlington Schools has remained focused on the priorities in the 2019-2024 Strategic Plan. Approved by the Board of Education in August 2019, the strategic plan identifies a focused set of recommendations that support the district’s mission - to challenge and support every student, every step of the way.

“The 2019-2024 Strategic Plan guides everything we do in our schools, and at the heart of it is our long-standing excellence in academics and our commitment to ensuring that our students are prepared to succeed in life,” said Superintendent Paul Imhoff, Ed.D.

The strategic plan identifies two priorities - whole learning and student and staff well-being - with continuous improvement serving as the foundational element of the plan.

Here’s a look at the progress on each priority area of the strategic plan.

You’ll be able to read more in our Quality Profile, the district’s annual accountability report, when it is released in early 2022.

Whole Learning

This priority area focuses on academics – the center of the Upper Arlington Schools experience. It builds on the district’s long-running philosophy of educating the whole child in order to set students up for success here and in their next step in life.

With this in mind, Upper Arlington Schools launched a new all-day kindergarten program in the fall to better meet the needs of developing learners so that they are able to grow academically, socially and emotionally.

“By transitioning from a part-day to a full-day program, we now have double the time in the classroom each day with our youngest learners to develop their skills in the core academic areas such as literacy and math,” said Andy Hatton, Ed.D., the associate director of learning and leadership.

Another major stride in this strategic priority is the implementation of the new multi-tiered system of support (MTSS) framework. Upper Arlington Schools is taking the lead in education nationwide by implementing MTSS so that every student is able to maximize their growth through differentiated and individualized instruction with a focus on the whole child.

“MTSS brings to life our mission to challenge and support every student, every step of the way,” Hatton said.
Learning new skills and meeting community needs through service learning is a year-long commitment for our students and our staff — a tradition that stretches back decades in our school district.

Service learning is an important part of our academic program and whole learning, a priority in the 2021-2024 Strategic Plan for Upper Arlington Schools. It is the first action word in our vision — uniquely accomplished students prepared to serve, lead and succeed — and it speaks to all of our values: start with heart, strength in team and contagious drive.

Service learning gives students an opportunity to meet a real community need that connects back to what they’re learning in the classroom. They gain an understanding about things that are bigger than themselves and are able to take away a lifelong lesson of the importance of serving others — all while incorporating academic skills in areas such as literacy and language arts, math, science and social studies.

We have incredible service-learning projects unfolding in our schools all the time. I’ll share a recent example that has a long history in our schools.

The story stretches back two decades and spans three schools — Hastings Middle School, Upper Arlington High School and Jones Middle School, where it started.

Twenty years ago, Loretta Heigle, then a sixth-grade teacher at Jones, worked with her students on an extensive service-learning project about the “Lost Boys of Sudan.” Driven out of Sudan by civil war in the late 1980s and separated from their families, the Lost Boys, as they became known, were the survivors of a tragic exodus, walking more than a thousand miles to seek refuge in Ethiopia.

The project at Jones about these survivors sparked interest at the high school and a relationship with two Lost Boys who were then attending The Ohio State University. The high school teachers involved in the project connected many of their curriculum standards to this issue and eventually helped fund a clinic in Sudan.

That work then sparked the interest of a student at Hastings Middle School, who was the son of one of the high school teachers and encouraged his teachers to create a service-learning project on this topic at Hastings.

Now, 20 years after the original project at Jones, Hastings continues this service-learning tradition each fall with the sixth-grade class and Bol Aweng, one of the Lost Boys, to support the Buckeye Clinic in Sudan and further medical support for the people there. This is the seventh year for the service-learning project at Hastings. Students read books in language arts class about the Lost Boys and South Sudan and watch videos about the current situation in South Sudan, and then the project culminates in a walkathon to raise money to support the Buckeye Clinic.

This year, Upper Arlington High School broadcast journalism students and teacher Amanda Fountain have come on board to tell the story of this 20-year service-learning partnership. This gives the high school students real-world learning experience, supports their academic growth and, for some of them, takes them back to what they learned as sixth-graders working on this project at Hastings.

We have many, many more incredible examples of service-learning projects like this happening in our schools. It is wonderful to see our students growing as learners and deepening their commitment to service through projects like these.

Paul Imhoff, Ed.D. is superintendent of Upper Arlington Schools. You can follow him on Twitter @imhoffpaul.
Student and Staff Well-being

Upper Arlington Schools believes well-being is critical to fostering a safe and inclusive learning environment where students and staff can thrive. “As Dr. Imhoff says, academics are our main business, but we also know that students who aren’t well can’t learn,” Hatton said.

To guide the work on this strategic priority, Upper Arlington Schools will be using feedback directly from students in order to understand the bigger picture of where they are as individuals.

Over the past year, Upper Arlington Schools has engaged students in two surveys focused on well-being – one for students in grades 3-12 and another for students in grades 7-12.

“These surveys will provide valuable feedback to inform our work to support students, which is critically important to academic achievement,” Hatton said.

Continuous Improvement

The foundational element of the strategic plan is continuous improvement - and this applies to every facet of the district, from academics to finances. Over the past year and a half, Upper Arlington Schools has creatively stretched its financial resources by reducing its budget reserve; seeking out approximately $4.6 million in cost reductions, primarily through a three-year hiring freeze on new positions; and utilizing additional COVID-related funding made available to school districts.

“Looking to the future, as we continue to build on the tradition of excellence in our schools, our five-year financial forecast will be an important guide for us,” said Treasurer / CFO Andrew Geistfeld, who shared the new forecast in November of 2021. “This is an important check-in point for us as a district and will help us keep a clear view on what our future impacts and needs are.”

You can read more about the five-year forecast in the Treasurer’s Notes column in this newsletter, and you can find the new five year forecast at www.uaschools.org/treasurer.aspx.

UAHS Boys, Girls Water Polo Win State Championships

Upper Arlington High School swept the water polo state championships, with back-to-back wins for the boys and girls teams on October 31, 2021.

In the state final match at Cincinnati Princeton, the boys team edged past Toledo St. Francis 11-10. The UA girls team followed up just a couple of hours later by defeating the Cincinnati Mavericks 9-5.

It is the third consecutive state championship for the girls, who won the 2020 state championship in May of 2021 after their season was postponed to the spring due to COVID-19. The girls team has won 19 state championships overall, including seven in the past nine years.

It was a triumphant return to the top for the boys team as they claimed their first championship in nine years. They have won six state titles overall.

UAHS Students Join Local Peers for Storytelling Workshop

Students from Upper Arlington High School recently came together with students from two other Columbus area schools to elevate their voices and share the power of their unique and personal stories in a workshop at the Columbus Metropolitan Main Library.

The Voices of Empathy Storytelling Workshop grew from a partnership between Tricia Fellinger, a global language teacher at Upper Arlington High School, and Donte Woods-Spikes, Columbus artist, documentary filmmaker and storyteller. Approximately 36 students from Upper Arlington High School, Bexley High School and Eastmoor Academy participated in the Voices of Empathy workshop on November 12, 2021. Woods-Spikes served as the main presenter and facilitator.

“Everyone has a story – and those stories can be powerful vehicles for positive change in our communities,” Fellinger said. “Sometimes, young people feel like no one is listening to them, and that’s when they turn to social media to express their frustrations, fears and dreams. We want to equip young people with the tools to use their voices in spaces other than social media.”

At the workshop, students built skills relating to the three major aspects of storytelling: personal narrative, telling someone else’s story, and listening to someone’s story. The program gave students the opportunity to develop empathy as they listen to and learn from perspectives different from their own. When rooted in awareness and understanding, these skills are fundamental to sustaining an inclusive culture in Upper Arlington Schools, which directly supports the district’s strategic plan priority of student and staff well-being and commitment to diversity, equity and inclusion.

Voices of Empathy was organized by Upper Arlington Schools with the financial support of several Columbus and Upper Arlington community organizations.

Treasurer’s Notes

Andrew L. Geistfeld

In November, I presented to the Board of Education a five-year financial forecast for the district covering three years of actual data and five years of anticipated revenues and expenditures. This is a legally required document that is presented to the board for approval and then filed with the state of Ohio.

This document is an important check-in point for our district, so that we can keep a clear view on what our future impacts and needs are.

The new five-year forecast reflects what we have been anticipating for some time – that the biggest impacts on our future finances will be inflation, enrollment growth and the decision to delay an operating levy for two years as a result of the pandemic and the economic situation.

As you may know, the last 10 years have been a period of significant growth for our district, and past projections have indicated that enrollment will continue to grow.

At the Board of Education meeting in January, we will be sharing a new enrollment projection report. This independent report is prepared by an outside agency that looks at everything from real estate trends to birth data to project how many students will be enrolled in our schools during the next 10 years. The updated report will provide us with an even clearer picture of the growth that is ahead of us.

As of next fall, it will have been five years since we last went to voters to request additional operating funding. Over the past two years, in the absence of new operating funding, we have creatively stretched our financial resources by reducing our budget reserve; seeking out approximately $4.6 million in cost reductions, primarily through a three-year hiring freeze on new positions; and utilizing additional COVID-related funding made available to school districts.

Even with the proactive steps we have taken, our expenditures are already outpacing our revenue. This is a typical levy cycle for a school district, and it’s why school districts usually go back to voters every three years to request new operating funding.

As we go forward in the 2022 calendar year, the Board of Education will continue to discuss how it will address the district’s future financial needs.

To review the new five year forecast, please visit our website at www.uaschools.org/treasurer.aspx.
Hastings and Jones middle schools were thrilled to welcome former and current service members, both in person and virtually, for their annual Veterans Day celebrations. These opportunities for students in eighth grade not only serve as a way to celebrate veterans in our community but also offer a deeply impactful learning experience for our students. They spend time learning about the service and experience of their special guests, part of their American history studies in eighth grade. One veteran who attended the Jones Middle School Veterans Day program shared that it is “one of the many shining examples of just that sort of education beyond the textbook.”

Thanks to the annual Wickliffe Progressive Elementary School harvest food and winter gift drive, hearts and bellies were full for families who receive assistance from Heart to Heart Food Pantry.

Members of the Greensview Elementary School Kindness Club offered words of encouragement for students on their way to school.
Windermere Elementary School students created artwork and then stretched their paragraph writing skills by reflecting on what they’re thankful for.

Barrington Elementary School students learned about economics, marketing and advertising, and visited The Ohio State University for the Buckeye Bonanza, a legacy service learning project of almost 30 years.

Congratulations to 14 Golden Bears who signed their letters of intent on National Signing Day to continue their academic and athletic pursuits at the college level!

Wickliffe Progressive Elementary School students spent time doing hands-on learning connecting back to their studies about indigenous peoples during National Native American Indian Heritage Month.

Tremont Elementary School kindergarteners were thinking hard about how to design their own thinking caps during their Elementary Explorations learning time.

Upper Arlington High School Vocal Music ushered in a historic year for the arts with the premiere performance in the new performing arts center at the high school.

2021 Educator Hall of Fame

The Educator Hall of Fame was established in 2007 by former UAHS Principal and current Upper Arlington City Council President and Mayor Kip Greenhill to honor “the best of the best” teachers in the district. The following four retired teachers were nominated by their peers and selected by a group representing teachers and alumni for induction into the Hall of Fame:

- Diane Haddad, language arts, Upper Arlington High School

Nominations are currently being accepted for the 2022 Educator Hall of Fame honorees, who will also be announced and recognized in July. To submit a nomination, please visit www.uaschools.org/EducatorHallofFame.aspx.

Library to Seek Additional Operating Funds in 2022

In 2022, the Upper Arlington Public Library will ask voters for an increase in operating funds – the first such request in 15 years.

In May 2022, voters will decide on a single ballot issue that asks for a renewal of our existing 2-mill operating levy plus a 1-mill increase. Our current levy expires in November 2022, and is collecting at just 1.41 mills – the 2nd lowest millage for any library in Franklin County.

Even with this proposed increase, the Library will remain an incredible value. The cost to the taxpayer will increase by less than $3 per month per $100,000 of home value. Importantly, by asking for a 10-year levy, we won’t need to return to the voters for a decade.

Local community support is crucial to the operation of the Library: it supplies 53% of our income. The additional funds will be used to operate and maintain our buildings, sustain our collection of materials and electronic resources, increase service to seniors, and fund crucial building repairs like a new roof for the Main Library.

If the Library does not secure a stable increase in revenue, we will be forced to drastically cut hours, cut materials, programs and specialized services, and be unable to fund critical capital projects.

Look for more information on the levy over the next few months.

Like many of you, I welcome the new year as an opportunity to reflect on the passage of time and welcome new beginnings. Here at the UA Library, this year has special significance because it marks the end of our current tax levy, signaling a return to the ballot to ask voters for continued funding.

On May 3, 2022, Upper Arlington voters will determine the future of the UA Library when they vote on a single ballot issue that asks for the renewal of our existing 2-mill operating levy plus a 1-mill increase. Approval of this request is critical to the continued operation of the library; without it, we will lose 53% of our operating funds.

Under Ohio law, levies are collected at a fixed dollar amount. Our current levy was first approved in 2008, with renewals in 2012 and 2016. Thus, the Library receives about the same revenue today as when it was first passed. Of course, our costs for books, eBooks, magazines, technology, electricity, natural gas, maintenance, and payroll have grown significantly during that time.

Few families could afford today’s expenses on their incomes from 2008. If asked to further cut those 2008 dollars by half, most people would say it’s impossible. That is the challenge the UA Public Library faces today and why we must turn to the community to support this renewal with a small increase.

Through careful management, hard work by Library staff, and continued oversight by our community board of trustees, we have been successful in stretching our levy dollars much farther and for longer than we anticipated. The UA Library is an essential service in our community and provides great value to residents.

This levy is critical to the sustained operation of the Library. Thanks to the strong support of UA residents, we have been able to maintain a nationally ranked 5-Star Library without an increase in taxes for 14 years. With the passage of this levy, the Library can confidently make sure the library will continue to remain strong over the next decade. More information is available on page 19 and at http://levy.ualibrary.org.

The Economic Impact of Public Libraries

Fun fact: There are more libraries in the United States than McDonald’s and Starbucks. Why do we think that is?

Public libraries have an incredible impact on their communities and the residents who live there. They serve as a welcome hub and gathering space, increase home values, and offer resources for small businesses and technology training. When given a choice, most people prefer to have lots of amenities in their community. The quality of schools, community centers, and libraries have a lot to do with making a community successful. Research shows homes located near a library are worth, on average, $9,630 more than homes further away.

Ohio has the highest number of library transactions per capita in the country; residents use library materials and services at a rate that is more than twice the national average. How does this translate into value? According to the American Library Association value calculator, the Upper Arlington Public Library saves users an estimated $38,550,590.75 in a year. With our 33,837 cardholders, each Library patron saves an average of $1,140 per year by checking out all kinds of items, such as books, magazines, movies, and video games. This is in addition to our other complimentary services like meeting rooms, programs for all ages, and access to computers and databases.

The next time you check out items from the Library, sneak a peek at the bottom of your receipt to see just how much you saved!
Billy Summers
By Stephen King
Billy is a decorated war Veteran with Houdini vanishing powers, a perfect killing machine, a hit man. Billy wants to retire, and with one job left to finish what could go wrong? Of course, everything! Part thriller, part crime novel, the first part of the book starts slow, but read on. Eventually the pace picks up like a speeding train to a great ending. Another good read from King.

The Thursday Murder Club
By Richard Osman
Each Thursday, four friends at a peaceful retirement village in the English countryside meet to discuss unsolved crimes — until a local developer is murdered right under their noses. The ragtag, energetic bunch of septuagenarians jump at the opportunity to get their hands dirty solving a real crime and antagonize the local police as much as they aid them in investigating. A fun read with quirky characters — each with their own secrets that eventually come out.

Beowulf
By Maria Dahvana Headley
The introduction sets the tone beautifully for this first translation of Beowulf in 20 some years. Headley’s work is lucid and engrossing. One of my favorite things about this book is her belief that (now that the original Old English epic is accessible to anyone with an Internet connection) an even wider set of eyes will bear even more interesting perspectives and translations. Multiple copies of this title are on my holiday list for dear ones.

Six of Crows
By Leigh Bardugo
If you appreciate strong world-building and character development, then Six of Crows is a must-read. Although technically a YA fantasy, the caliber of the writing and complexity of the plot will also appeal to older readers. The book follows lockpick Kaz Brekker and his crew as they attempt the impossible: to break into the world’s most fortified building and steal the most heavily protected item inside. The monetary reward will change their lives, but money is far from the crew members’ only motive.

City of the Plague God
By Sarwat Chadda
Sik thinks it’s just another night at his parents’ deli, but everything changes when a couple of demons crash the place. Literally: they destroy the entire building, demanding a mystery item from Sik that he simply doesn’t have. Suddenly Sik’s parents are in the hospital with a strange illness, one of Sik’s classmates is behaving oddly, and Sik is pulled into a world of gods, demons, and monsters from his family’s old stories. To save his parents and all of New York, Sik just needs to travel to the realm of the dead, find his brother, and bring back the Flower of Immortality. Should be easy since Sik is apparently, somehow, already immortal...right? A funny, fast-paced read perfect for fans of Percy Jackson looking for their next fantasy favorite.

The Case of the Vanishing Blonde: And Other True Crime Stories
By Mark Bowden
Award-winning author Mark Bowden has selected six of his most interesting and engaging crime stories from his many years as a crime reporter. These stories cover a wide variety of crimes but at the same time each one makes the reader sit up, take note and keep reading. Just a couple of examples of the underlying issues in these stories: defining consent when drugs are involved and legally ensnaring Internet predators. This book would make an excellent book club selection as the various social issues would make for an entertaining discussion.

New Research Databases
We’ve added two new databases to our list of nearly 200 online resources. ThisWeek Community Newspapers covers the news in Columbus’ suburbs, from Bexley to Worthington, and you now have 24/7 online access to the full-text articles from 2002 to present. You’re able to search by keywords and filter by specific dates/date ranges. Cochrane Library compiles medical research, evaluates it, and breaks it down so that it’s easier for patients to understand. The resources can be divided into two main categories: Clinical Answers and Cochrane Reviews. Clinical Answers answer a specific research question with a 1-2 sentence answer. Cochrane Reviews drill down into a specific study: what question researchers were trying to answer, what methods they attempted to use, what their results were, and rates the quality of the gathered evidence. Explore these and all our databases at http://databases.ualibrary.org.
